

Trident Technical College in Charleston, South Carolina, is a rare find for production companies and film students. One of only a few colleges in the country training students on 35-mm film equipment, TTC brings film experts and apprentices together for the benefit of both.

The College leases its extensive film equipment to filmmakers at a discount, provided they use Film Production students on their productions. The College owns a million dollars worth of equipment, including four 35-mm cameras, a 1,000-AMP generator and an extensive light and grip package.

The training/leasing program is well suited for small and independent feature films, as well as commercial work. The unique program benefits both the College and production companies. When companies lease TTC's equipment and use the College's skilled apprentices, they save 60 percent of the lease cost.

Budget-minded production companies get great equipment at a great price, plus the added bonus of film students to help with their productions.
